Hello Syed

You've successfully opted out of saving with NEST through your employer, JPINGO'S FLAME GRILL LIMITED

We've completed your request to opt out of saving with Nest. This means you're no longer a member of Nest and we're not expecting any more contributions to your Nest retirement pot.

Your Nest online account will also be closed.

What happens next?

As you're no longer a member of Nest you won't be entitled to any payments from Nest and will have no financial claim against NEST and/or NEST Corporation.

You can choose to join Nest again if you'd like to. To do this, please speak to your employer.

What do you need to do now?

If you don't think you've submitted a notice to opt out of pension saving with Nest or if you have any questions about this letter please call us on 0300 020 0090.

If you've opted out of pension saving with Nest before and think your employer has accidentally re-enrolled you, this might have happened because:

NEST, Nene Hall, Lynch Wood Business Park, Peterborough, PE2 6FY t: 0300 020 0090

- Your employer is legally required to assess its workforce every three years and re-enrol all eligible workers. You might be re-enrolled at that point, unless you've opted out within the last 12 months.
- You have started work with a new employer who is required to enrol you into their pension scheme when you join.
- You are working for multiple employers, and one or all of them has put you into pension saving.

If you want employer contributions in the future you'll need to ask your employer to re-enrol you.

Where to go for more information
